Introduction

THE sessions of two of the Great and General Courts of the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay — those of 1724 and 1725 — are printed in this volume, the sixth of the series. The Court of 1724 assembled May 27, 1724, was prorogued June 20, again met on November 11 and continued to sit until December 24. These two sessions constituted the life of the House of 1724. The Court of 1725 met May 26, 1725, was prorogued June 24, again assembled November 3 and remained in a session of unusual length, and with an adjournment of ten days, till prorogued January 17, 1726. A third session began April 13, 1726, and was dissolved the next day. No journal of its proceedings was printed.

The war against the eastern Indians, declared by the General Court of 1722-23, continued through the two years and naturally engaged much of the attention of the Court. Unfortunately the rule against printing votes on the war, passed November 15, 1723, remained in force and deprived the record of an historical feature of no small importance. The great attention given to bounties, aids or compensation for the injured, provision for the families of the killed, and the detail of the muster-rolls, proves how much of the time of the Court was engrossed by those necessary accompaniments to the war. Rich as the record is in names of those who served to their cost, it cannot make up for the exclusion of votes and reports on policy and special measures, most of which have been lost without leaving so much as a mention.

The war called for defensive as well as offensive operations, costly and not too successful in results. At Northfield a new block-house held a garrison of whites and Indians, and the apprehensions of the people on this frontier led to a reinforcement for the threatened towns of Northfield, Deerfield and Brownfield. At the same time a force sent eastward received instructions to penetrate the enemy's country by the Kennebec River, surprise them, if possible, hinder their planting and intercept them when fowling or fishing. The Six Nations sent aid and a proposed conference at Albany offered hope of further combined operations.¹ A committee on the state of the war, with broad powers, was early constituted by the House, having as special objects: "to project some Effectual Methods for the more vigorous Prosecution of the same, and report their Opinion of what is further necessary to be done for the better Security and Defense of the Eastern Frontiers, and that the several Complaints and Papers which relate to the Conduct of the Officers in those Parts be committed to them for their Information herein, the Committee to sit forthwith, and to make Report as soon as possible."² So promising an instrument of action or information left no record of its proceedings and recommendations.

It may never have sat, for the House named a like committee at the next session, with a somewhat restricted function.¹

In opening the second session of the General Court, November 11, 1724, Lieutenant Governor Dummer gloried in the success of the expeditions against the Indians in the east. A march to Norridgewock was attended with "such a Destruction of the Enemy as has not been known in any of the late Wars, and (as I hope) in the entire Dissipation of that Tribe." The expedition to Penobscot, intended to surprise the Indians, failed through an error of direction, which brought the force to the river forty miles below the fort. In his opinion the experience gained somewhat compensated for this failure. In the west success had not answered expectation and a more vigorous offense was necessary, even to marching the soldiers beyond the limits of the Province. The neighboring colonies had been asked to assist and representations had been made to the king.² In either direction time must elapse before aid or encouragement be received. Massachusetts-Bay stood practically alone in the contest, though the whole of New England was deeply concerned in the outcome.

When the General Court met in May, 1725, the Lieutenant Governor announced that some brave men had been lost, but through the favor of God more savages had been destroyed. He hoped that a vigorous prosecution of the war, perhaps for another year, would reduce the enemy to terms. He favored offering a premium to such men as would voluntarily enlist and the abandoning of impressments.³ In fact the Province had suffered a severe blow at Pigwacket in the desperate stand made by Captain John Lovewell of Dunstable and his band, an event so recent in time that Dummer could hardly have been possessed of the details when he opened the session.⁴ Both sides began to weary of the war, so costly in men and money, and so terrible in its invitation to sudden inroads by an implacable enemy. A committee "to retrench any Extraordinary Expenses" on the frontiers⁵ led to no definite result, but indicates the growing anxiety over the burdens imposed by the campaigns.

On the whole the operations against the Indians were accomplishing their object. In November, 1725, Dummer could again speak of the greater success in bringing out hardy and brave men as volunteers and also of the terror inspired in the Indian by following him into his country.⁶ Peace was almost a fact and became a certainty before the rising of the Court. At once measures were taken to reduce the forces in Provincial pay. Such reduction could, however, only be partially applied as the Indians on the western frontiers were not entirely pacified.⁷

The methods of raising soldiers had not been satisfactory, compulsory service encouraging desertion, evasion and fraud. The Council framed a proposition to recruit the forces by volunteers, a sufficient reward being offered to any able bodied man not an inhabitant of a frontier town, as should voluntarily enlist for a term of two years. The House widened the question by proposing a joint committee to "project some more easy and effectual Method for raising Soldiers for the Defence of the Frontiers, and the more vigorous Prosecution of the War", but that prevented immediate action and threw the report into the next session.¹ Exemption from impressment into the service was sought by enlistment as a trooper, resulting in placing the principal burden on the foot companies. To correct that inequality power was given to a captain or chief officer of a foot company to impress both troopers and foot-men as required.² The troops were also reduced to one in each regiment of militia, and the centinels in each troop to the number of forty.³ Captain Bourne accomplished a notable success in enlisting one hundred Indians into the King's service, "not only Able of Body but well inclined to serve his Majesty against the Indian enemy."⁴

An unusual provision looked to the raising of snow-shoe men in certain enumerated towns to act on an Indian alarm, and to receive the same wages and subsistence allowed to the marching forces of the Province, and "such other Rewards in case they obtain any Plunder, Scalps of the Enemy or Captives, as is by Law provided as a Premium or Bounty for those who go forth as Volunteers, without pay." These snow-shoe men also received a special yearly allowance for keeping their shoes and "moggasins" fit for service.⁵ Attention may also be called to the order directing the Treasurer "to Bury the several Indian Scalps now in his Custody, in some private Place, so as not to be discovered or produced again," which suggests an over-use of scalps for gain when opportunity offered.⁶

The auditing of muster-rolls forms an important feature of the record and the minute examination and questioning of items prove its necessity. The number of discredited charges does not equal that in some earlier years, but it is sufficient to justify the care of the House committee expended upon the returns. Some of the rolls were clearly prepared with fraudulent intent, to secure overpayments for service not rendered or for service not properly allowed for in the general system of enlistments and wages. The abuses laid against Captain John Gyles produced a resolution of the House expressed in unmistakable terms: "Resolved, That any Officers Mustering or Enrolling any Person or Persons on any Muster-Roll on any pretence whatsoever sooner than by Law he or they ought to do, is a manifest Deceit, Couzenage and Imposition on this Government," and, of course, contrary to law. In consequence the Attorney General was instructed to bring suit against Captain Gyles for his "Misdemeanours, unjustifiable and unlawful Practices and Proceedings."⁷ The Committee found no sufficient ground for a prosecution,⁸ but the vigilance of the House had been shown. So Captain Dewey had received more money from the Treasury than he should have, but the fault was due to his superior officer who had directed him to enter on the roll men for a longer time than they had served.¹

The House jealously guarded its control over the muster-rolls and payments to the soldiers. When the Board proposed a joint committee for muster-rolls the House refused to adopt it, though the reason advanced by the Board seems proper and defensible — that such a committee “would very much Expedite the business of the Court, and save the Time the Board must otherwise have in Examining the Rolls before they pass on them for Payment.”² A second vote of the Board, adopted in the second session, expressing the expediency and necessity of a joint committee, received no more favorable welcome in the House.³ The right to make an independent examination carried with it the valuable privilege of detecting and denouncing errors or alleged encroachment by the Board on the prerogatives of the House.

Special conditions offered in Hampshire, where small parties of soldiers, under the care of sergeants, were employed in the service, but without an officer who could properly certify to the service and charges.⁴ The towns in York County, greatly exposed to the depredations of Indians, had been so heavily drawn upon for men as to be weakened and in need of assistance for defense and security. The House proposed to restrict the calls made upon those towns.⁵

The past wars brought reminders. For the Canada expedition of 1711 the House adopted a resolution giving to each soldier engaged the sum of fifty shillings “in Lieu of the Bounty of Her late Majesty Queen Anne,” conditioned on the return of his arms to the Province.⁶ Apparently eighteen muster-rolls covered this expedition.⁷

In seeking to do away with the most fruitful source of troubles with the Indians — the invasion by settlers of Indian lands and the consequent irregular and indefensible manner of extending the frontier — the House sought to prohibit any settlement to the east of Falmouth in Casco Bay or beyond the towns on the western frontier, until the General Court should be satisfied.⁸ A bill framed on such a line was, however, rejected on its second reading, because, it was argued, the good and wholesome intentions of the measure would not be effected by the bill.⁹ A substitute measure met the same fate.¹⁰ While there was land to be taken and settlers to occupy them the antagonism between white man and Indian would continue. The conditions laid down by the General Court for making a settlement on lands offer many points of interest when the place was on a frontier, exposed to Indian incursion,¹¹ or had been purchased from the Indians, as at Hassanamisco,¹² or at Pennicook or Stevens’ settlement.¹³

Friendly Indians presented many problems. They asked permission to sell their lands; they constituted a company in the fighting force of the Province; they committed acts which led to their imprisonment and the Province was restive under the cost of maintaining such prisoners; their services were given to any one who would support them without charge to the government.¹ In Nantucket the natives complained of oppression by the whites and sufficient evidence of it was submitted to warrant the appointment of a committee to procede to Nantucket and investigate.² A general law for regulating the civilized Indians in the Province and for preventing oppression or abuses received prompt attention in the House.³

The sessions had not developed serious differences between the Lieutenant Governor and the House, at all equal to the trouble which had put an end to Governor Shute's usefulness. The Board and House differed on details of policy and specific measures and the House defended its prerogative when a possible attack threatened. The popular body proved the more sensitive. The skirmishes between the two parts of the court may have proved of value in political education. The jealousy exhibited, expressed in direct terms and interpreted as offensive, produced the nearest approach to state papers the Journal can show.

The Lieutenant Governor, acting as he supposed in accordance with the wishes of the Court appointed a councillor and a member of the House to go to the Eastern frontier on public business. He communicated the names to the Board, which accepted them, and to the House, making "no doubt but it will be agreeable to them also." He was quickly undeceived. After debate the question was put in the House, "Whether the Advice of this court has been had in Appointing and sending down Two Gentlemen to the Eastward, which His Honour has Nominated for that Service?" It passed in the negative by a "very great Majority." The same day the difference was healed by the Board's desiring the Lieutenant Governor to appoint the two gentlemen and the House concurred without further trouble.⁴

The Lieutenant Governor and Council had, during the recess, passed warrants for paying several companies of volunteers. When the House examined the muster-rolls of those companies errors were discovered and a vigorous resolution adopted remonstrating to the Board the errors as "grievous," in order that such misapplications of the public money should be prevented for the future.⁵ It was a reappearance of the dispute raised two years before. The Board proposed that the remonstrance be not printed until an answer could be prepared, but the House merely read the proposal and printed their remonstrance in due course.⁶ Almost a full month passed before the Council had prepared its statement in which it again remonstrated against the publication, as it had "a direct tendency to bring the Council into Disrepute, and to produce an uncomfortable Alienation and Distance between the Board and the Honourable House, Which the Board judge ought by all Means to be Avoided."¹ The Board appeared to hold the better position; yet by the control of the purse the House exercised a power not to be gained from any other source.

The control of the House in matters of taxation and revenue also constituted a cherished prerogative, to be ardently defended against any attempt to lessen or even to share it. The Board in December, 1724, asked the House if it would come into a conference on the "Drawing in the Money in the Resolve for Emitting Thirty Thousand Pounds in Bills of Credit," the time required being in question. The House did not confine itself to refusing the proposed conference but laid down its conception of its right in no mistakable language: "We have never as yet Conferred with the Council in Matters of Money, either as to the Quantum or Time of repaying the same into the Treasury; and never was as we know of, desired by the Council but once, which was denied by the House, as being their undoubted Right and Privilege to grant and appropriate the Sum or Sums they do from time to time Raise, and set the time for the Payment or Drawing in the same; and therefore on this Head the House cannot come into a Conference as desired."²

So long as bills of credit, issued on the credit of the Province, formed the chief reliance for meeting expenditures, depreciation would occur and introduce the usual long train of economic disturbances. A joint committee, composed of leading members, to sit "once every week at least in the Recess of the Court until their Report be perfected,"³ took up the difficult problem, made the more difficult by continuing issues of bills and the presence of counterfeits. That committee presented its report November 17, 1724. Recognizing that only by lessening the number of bills in circulation could a remedy for depreciation be found, the committee proposed to hasten their redemption, to raise by taxes enough to meet the year's charges, and to borrow £20,000 in Province bills of credit at eight per cent. Though not connected with its subject or appointment the committee proposed bounties on hemp, canvas and winter wheat.⁴ In Committee of the Whole House the report was not accepted but another resolution was agreed to, which is not entered upon the Journal.⁵ Within a few days the House called for a new issue of bills of credit.⁶

A member of the Council, Thomas Hutchinson, had prepared a plan of his own for "Retrieving the Value of the Bills of Credit," and the House called for it.⁷ In the many publications issued on the currency question in Massachusetts this plan does not appear. It may have served as the basis of the four pages printed by Hutchinson in 1734. The Journal of 1724 speaks of the "Scheme or Projection" of Mr. Hutchinson, and a copy of the 1734 publication bears the endorsement "Hutchinson Scheme,"¹ but at the time the House gave no sign of having done more than given it an examination.

Not unrelated to the bills of credit were the operations under the £100,000 loan, distributed among the counties and managed by commissioners. The returns were not wholly satisfactory and, like other financial expedients of the kind, did not work as smoothly as had been anticipated. With a view of improving the situation a committee was appointed "to oblige the Commissioners of the £. 100,000 Loan, to observe and comply with their Duty."² The trouble was more deep-seated than the Commissioners and such application of public loans gave rise to dangers founded on favoritism in distribution and over-expansion of credit on not easily realized security. In some cases borrowers applied to the General Court to be released from their obligations, voluntarily incurred.

The ministers suffered greatly by the depreciation of the bills of credit and their situation called loudly for relief. A joint committee, appointed in December, 1724, reported but the Board came to the conclusion that the recommendations in the report would not attain the desired ends. As a substitute the Board proposed earnestly to recommend to the congregations and religious assemblies in the Province to make good to the ministers the difference between silver and bills of credit and to allow for the increased cost of living. The House also rejected the report of the committee and concurred in the proposals of the Board.³ To solve so complicated a question by appealing to the voluntary action of interested communities did not promise an adequate, much less a uniform remedy.

Legislative bodies of that day did not invite publicity on their proceedings and some unknown incident occurred that awakened the apprehension of the House. It ordered a vote "the better to support the Honour and Dignity of the House; and to prevent the disclosing or discovering Abroad of any Debate that may arise and happen in the House."⁴ The committee acted promptly and reported the following: "Resolved, That if any Member of this House shall Disclose, Divulge, or make Publick the Debates or Secrets of the House, which tends very much to the Obstruction of that Freedom and Liberty of Speech so necessary for the Good and Welfare of the Province, he shall be lyable to such Censure as the House shall think proper."⁵ No immediate action under this order appears to have been exercised. A case in point occurred towards the end of the 1725 session when the Board reported that a member of the House had clandestinely obtained from the clerk of the Secretary of the Board a letter from the Lords Justices in England to the Lieutenant Governor upon very important matters, with a design to put the same in print, "in Affront to the King's Majesty, the Dishonour of this Government, and tending to the Disturbance of His Majesty's Subjects of this Province." The House gave serious consideration to the message and obtaining no satisfaction from the member, Gershom Woodell, placed him in charge of a messenger of the House to be safely kept until further order.¹ A rather remarkable situation developed. Stephen Greenleaf was the clerk in question and he had received money from Woodell every session of the Court, for looking over the files and papers in the Secretary's office. Among other matters Woodell, denied by the Secretary a copy of the address of the ministers for a Synod, had obtained it through Greenleaf and given it to John Checkley, a somewhat notorious disputant not in good standing with the orthodox. The sentence passed upon Woodell was, that he should be sharply reprimanded by the Speaker, should confess his fault to the Lieutenant Governor, obtain his forgiveness and the pardon of the House, and promise better behavior for the future.² Woodell remained obstinate and in wilful contempt of the House and there remained nothing to do but to expel him which was done.³ The House went further and expressed its desire that Greenleaf be discharged from Secretary Willard's service, though an officer of the Board. Secretary Willard agreed to gratify the House. A few days later Checkley fell under the displeasure of the House by preparing a petition for an Indian which was regarded as an imposition on that body.⁴

Governor Shute's memorial on some proceeding of the House of Representatives continued in uncertainty,⁵ but in 1725 the report of the King's Attorney and Solicitor General on the Governor's first memorial became known through Agent Cooke.⁶ The agent returned to New England, somewhat unexpectedly, and brought with him a paper of unmeasured possibilities to Massachusetts-Bay, based upon Shute's representation. On December 14, 1725, the Lieutenant Governor delivered to the House an "explanatory charter" received from England, which laid down the rule that the Governor of the Province had the power to veto the choice of the House of Speaker. The Board and House in conference, January 6, 1726, for several hours considered the paper, and on the 14th the House long debated it, finally taking a vote upon accepting or rejecting it, the first instance of the recording the ayes and noes in these Journals. As the majority was in favor of accepting it the House so resolved.⁷ The arrangement of names in this voting-list shows that they were called by counties and towns as printed in the list of members on the first day of the session. This acquiescence and moderation rendered unnecessary more radical action in England.

The ministers, assembled in Convention in May, 1725, prepared a memorial to the General Court, asking that a general Synod of the churches might be called to consider: "What are the Miscarriages whereof we have reason to think the Judgments of Heaven upon us call us to be more generally Sensible, and what may be the most Evangelical and Effectual Expedients to put a Stop unto those or the like Miscarriages?" There had been no Synod for forty-five years and "the Great and Visible decay of Piety in the Country, and the growth of many Miscarriages which we may fear have provoked the Glorious Lord in a Series of various Judgments wonderfully to distress us," afforded reasons for following the example of the earlier ministers to recover lost ground. The Board approved but the House, after a very long debate, postponed the subject to the next session. Indeed a counter-memorial was prepared by dissenting ministers.¹ In furtherance of the plan the platform and results of the several Synods were to be printed in a small volume, and in number sufficient for the towns and churches in the Province.² The counter-memorial, prepared by Dr. Timothy Cutler and Samuel Myles, was dismissed by the Court as containing "an indecent Reflection on the Proceedings of this Board, with several groundless Insinuations."³ Some political aspect of the proposed Synod may have influenced the protestants, as well as the fact that such a church gathering could consistently only have acted for the benefit of its own congregations and forms of church government.⁴

The House showed its tenderness for Harvard College which had suffered by the death of its president, John Leverett. As the mansion house and land owned by Mr. Leverett lay contiguous to the College lands the Corporation of the College desired the General Court to purchase them, "to be the Seat and Habitation of the Presidents of Harvard-Colledge in times to come."⁵ The House moved cautiously and proposed a joint committee to enquire into the state of the College treasury, how the income and profits were appropriated, how the rents of the "new Colledge", Massachusetts Hall, had been disposed of, and what were the "necessary" charges of the Colleges. So wide an enquiry postponed action to the next session of the Court.⁶

The Corporation, with the approval of the Overseers, had chosen the Rev. Benjamin Colman, pastor since 1699 of the Brattle Street Church in Boston, to be President of Harvard College. The General Court, being asked to allow him an "honourable Allowance", raised a question, that his church might not be willing to part with him or Mr. Colman to leave his Church, and desired certainty on those points.⁷ The Overseers submitted the answer of Mr. Colman on December 17, with a request that the Court act on the President's salary.⁸ The House refused to establish a salary for the President of Harvard College for the time being, "before the Person Chosen to that Office has Accepted the Duty and Trust thereof."⁹ Dr. Colman declined the appointment and Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth was chosen, who had been released by his church and had accepted the position. For him the Honoured and Reverend the Board of Overseers of the College asked "such a Salary and Allowance for the Support and Maintenance" of the President in his high and important office.¹ Again did the House propose to look into the College finances, but would seek a suitable house and would advance one hundred and fifty pounds to enable the President to enter upon his "great Affair."² To expedite Dr. Wadsworth's removal to Cambridge the committee was authorized to hire a house for a short term.³ The committee reported in the middle of December and the House proposed to allow one thousand pounds to build a "Handsome Wooden Dwelling House" on land adjacent and belonging to the College. The income of Massachusetts Hall was given to Dr. Wadsworth during his term of service and this, with other undisposed of revenues of the College would, in their opinion, afford him an honorable maintenance and support.⁴ So indefinite an allowance required explanation or definition, which the Board asked the House to give.⁵ In great detail the House stated what it intended the President of the College should receive, profuse in asserting its wish for the prosperity of that "Society," and its flourishing under the Divine influence.⁶

The encouragement of domestic manufactures is shown by the premium claimed for linen cloth made in Marshfield.⁷ The opposite policy appeared in a proposal to lay a duty on rum distilled in the Province. What member of the House proposed the step cannot be learned, but he was seconded "by many members," as well for fiscal as for commercial reasons. A bill placed the duty at three pence the gallon and applied it to other spirits as well as rum.⁸ As the distilling of rum was an important interest in Boston and Charlestown, certain merchants, distillers and other inhabitants of the two places asked to be heard in opposition.⁹ Immediately after the hearing the bill received its third reading but on a question of being "passed to be engrossed," it was thrown out.¹⁰

In June, 1725, a scarcity of corn for bread made itself felt and the Board, on the suggestion of the Select-men of Boston, resorted to the unusual and somewhat extreme measure of ordering two ships lading with corn to be unloaded, and laying a general embargo on exports of bread or bread corn without permission of the Governor and Council. The House refused to agree and thereby proved its wisdom in refusing to interfere with trade for a temporary and probably exaggerated fear of a locality.¹¹

Again did the House provide for a "new Impression of the Laws now in Force," on the ground that no copies of the old issue could be had for the guidance of new towns as they came into being. The proposition called for more careful provision and after a long delay, in December, the House named its share of a joint commission to revise all the laws in force and to contract with some stationer for printing and handsomely binding a number, a report to be presented in the current session.¹² Plymouth also desired a new impression of its laws.¹ The resolution of December 22 appears to have come originally from the Board, naming its members of the commission, but it goes further and regulates the distribution and sale of the volume when printed.² An index of the laws, provided for in 1721, and completed in 1725 did not hold out promise of a speedy preparation of the laws themselves for the press.³

In arranging for the printing of the Journals in 1725 the number of copies printed and distributed was to give one to each member and another for the town he represented. The representatives of Boston were to "inspect and Correct the Press,"⁴ but the real labor fell upon John Wainwright, clerk of the House, who received a special allowance for preparing the votes for the press. The number of errors is still large but the general result points to a better supervision of the press.

In 1724 Rev. Joseph Sewall's election sermon, on "Rulers must be Just, ruling in the Fear of God," was printed by Bartholomew Green for Samuel Gerrish in an edition of four hundred copies, at a cost of nearly seventeen pounds.⁵ The dinner on election, given to the Lieutenant Governor, the Council and one hundred gentlemen and others, cost thirty-four pounds. In 1725 the printing of Rev. Ebenezer Thayer's election sermon, on "Jerusalem Instructed and Warned," from the same press and bookseller, cost thirteen pounds and fifteen shillings.⁶ The attendance at the dinner showed an increase of twenty five, but the bill for the feast called only for thirty-one pounds and five shillings.⁷

Mr. Speaker and the House went up accordingly, and His Honour made a SPEECH to the Court, of which Mr. Speaker obtain'd a Copy. His Honours Speech is as follows, viz.

GENTLEMEN,

AT the Desire of the last Assembly I gave Orders for the erecting a Block-house above Northfield, which is so far effected that a Garrison of English have been fixed there for near two Months, to whom are lately added eleven Men of the six Nations, among which are Hendrick and the Sachem of the River Indians. And now I think it greatly our Duty to place a Chaplain there as well for the Benefit of the English as for the Instruction of the Indians of the Garrison, and such of their Tribes as may resort thither.

Having lately received Intelligence of divers Tracts of the Enemy upon the Frontiers of Hampshire, and finding the Apprehensions of the People in those Parts were such, that there was Danger some of the Towns would be entirely abandoned, I took the Advice of His Majesty's Council and ordered a Reinforcement of Forty Men for Northfield, Deerfield and Brookfield. I have also by their Advice added Thirty Men to the Forces Eastward, in order to a March up Kennebeck-River into the Enemy's Country, to surprize them if possible, and also to hinder their Planting, and other Parties being employ'd at the same Time to Scout on other Rivers to intercept them in their Fishing & Fowling; this Reinforcement became necessary that the Frontier Towns might not be exposed thereby.

I have the last Week received Advice that the Chiefs of several Tribes of Canada Indians are on their Progress to Albany, in order to confer with the Commissioners of Indian Affairs of that Government, and the Chiefs of the Six Nations, on the Subject of our War with the Eastern Indians, Whereupon I have by Advice of His Majesty's Council sent two Gentlemen from the County of Hampshire to be present at their Conference, & to give me seasonable Advice of any Matters which may affect this Province; what this Convention may produce is uncertain, but I think it of the highest Consequence to us on this Conjuncture, that we do appear to our Enemies to be in such Posture as to make it their Interest to sue for a Peace. [8]

I have lately Advice from his Excellency the Governour, that he has presented the Mohawks Belt, which was graciously received by His Majesty.

Gentlemen of the House of Representatives,

The sinking Credit of the publick Bills has been often mentioned from the Chair, and I should have been glad if there were no Occasion now to repeat it, but that Evil growing apparently worse every Day: Certainly it must be high time to consider of a Remedy.

The Treasurer shall lay the publick Accompts before You, and I conclude with exhorting You in your next Supply to His Majesty for the Service of this Province, to avoid such Restrictions as have of late very much embroil'd Us.

Wm. DUMMER.

Read and Committed to the Committee for Petitions, to consider of this and Mr. Pitson's Petition, and report what they think proper to be done on said Petitions.

A Message from His Honour the Lieutenant Governour by Mr. Secretary, viz.

Gentlemen of the Representatives,

I received your Message desiring me to lay before you the Lists of the Soldiers, which cannot be done till the Officers come up with their Muster Rolls, there being considerable Alterations, especially in the Eastern Forces by Sickness, Death and Desertion, and the Exchanges of such as have been above two Years in the Service, the Lists whereof are not yet come to my Hands. I take this Occasion to inform you, that as I have been careful to employ the Forces in the best Manner for the Defence of the Province and Annoyance of the Enemy, so I am satisfied the Officers have generally done their Duty with industry and faithfulness, especially in the Eastern Frontiers, where the Service has been hard, for besides the continual Scoutings about the Towns, I have sent out four or five Parties to lye upon the Rivers, and Scout on the Sea Coast, in order to surprize the Enemy, besides other Marches which have been essay'd; and altho' the Providence of GOD hath frown'd on our Undertaking by the Sickness among the Soldiers, and the excessive Rains, I am satisfied the want of Success has not been owing to the Neglect of the Forces. I must therefore recommend to you the raising the Pay of the Captains in the Service, (who have no other Advantages but their Wages) and which Pay at present is less than a Surgeon can be had for, and especially that some further Encouragement be given to the Commander in Chief of the Eastern Forces, who has often applied to me for a Discharge, and having had Experience of his Faithfulness, Industry and good Conduct in the Affairs of the War, I think the Service will much suffer in his Dismission.

June 3d. 1724.

A Message from His Honour the Lieutenant Governour by Mr. Secretary.

Mr. Speaker, His Honour the Lieut. Governour directs this Honourable House to Attend him in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Speaker and the House went up accordingly; and His Honour made a Speech to the Court, of which Mr. Speaker obtained a Copy, and then with the House returned to their own Chamber.

His Honours SPEECH is as follows,

GENTLEMEN,

SINCE the last Session of the General Assembly, I have Order'd a March to Norridgewock, which by the Signal & Remarkable Favour of Providence has been Attended with great Success, in such a Destruction of the Enemy as has not been known in any of the late Wars, and (as I hope) in the entire Dissipation of that Tribe.

SOON after the Return of the Forces from this March, I Ordered Col. Westbrook, with about Three Hundred Men to March to Penobscut, a-cross the Country from Kennebeck-River, as being the most likely Method of Surprizing those Indians; And altho' it has pleased GOD to deny us the Desired Success through some great Mistake made in our Course, by which Means the Forces fell upon the River, Forty Miles below the Fort, Yet I think the March will not be altogether Unprofitable, The Country being thereby better known to our People, and they the more inured to the Woods; and doubtless these frequent Marches will very much Distress & Terrify the Enemy.

I have likewise Order'd a Second March to Norridgewock, to Ameseconti and Amerescoggin River, of whose Return I hear this Morning. [2]

THE Enemy have very much bent their Force this Summer on our Western Frontiers, but we have been so well prepared for them, that the Success has hardly answered their Expectation: However I am entirely of opinion, that we must Act yet more Offensively, in order to put an End to this War: And I doubt not but you will Cheerfully make the necessary Provisions for a sufficient Number of Soldiers for that End, and Vote your Consent for Marching them out of the Limits of the Province (if need be) in Pursuit & Annoyance of the Enemy.

I have with the Advice of His Majesty's Council, sent a Gentleman of the Government to the Governour and Assembly of Rhode-Island, and another to the Governour and Assembly of Connecticut, to Repeat our Desires to them for their Assistance in this War. What has been done on those Negotiations, as well as what Passed at the late Conference with the Six Nations at Albany, shall be laid before you.

WE have likewise sent instructions to our Agents humbly and earnestly to solicit His Majesty's Gracious Consideration of the Memorial of the General Assembly, (sent last Winter) Complaining of the Unjust Proceedings of the Governour of Canada, with Relation to the War, and some other Matters, to which I doubt not but we shall have a favourable Answer in the Spring.

COL. Doucet Lieut. Governour of Nova Scotia, has represented to me the Weak State of the Garrison at Annapolis; and that he cannot expect any Recruits from Great Britain before Winter, and has therefore desired a Supply from this Government of Thirty Men: Which Motion I promis'd him to lay before you; and I cannot but think it would be highly acceptable to His Majesty, and Recommend us to His Favour, and serve the General Interest of these Provinces, if we should allow this small Reinforcement on this Emergency.

I have often on these occasions, earnestly Recommended to you a speedy Care to Remedy the Evils that are daily encreasing upon us, by the present State of the Bills of Credit of the Province; among which, the Oppression and Discouragement the Ministers of the Gospel labour under, is none of the least, and demands your serious Attention.

THIS being your usual Session for Transacting the more Important and Publick Affairs of the Government, You will consider what is necessary for His Majesty's Service and the Good of the Province, and proceed therein with Unanimity and Dispatch. In all which, you may be assured of my Cheerful and Ready Concurrence.

Wm. DUMMER.

Nathaniel Byfield, Thomas Fitch and Adam Winthrop, Esqrs; brought down the Report of a Committee of both Houses appointed the 17th of June past, to consider of some proper ways for retrieving the Value of the Bills of Credit: Which is as follows, viz.

In Obedience to the within Order, We have met several times, and considered what might be most proper for Retrieving the Value of the Bills of Publick Credit: And are humbly of Opinion:

I. THAT the Lessening of their Number is the best way to Increase their Value: And therefore propose, That whosoever hath any part of the Hundred Thousand Pounds, Let out by the Province upon Loan, who had it before the Tenth of August last; and shall Pay in both Interest and Principal by the Thirteenth of February next, shall by the Commissioners that received it, be allowed Ten per Cent. upon the Principal Sum so Paid in; which the Commissioners shall Pay in to the Province Treasurer, who shall Discharge the Commissioners for so much Principal with the Allowance: Any Law, Usage, or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. THAT the General Court do Annually by a Tax upon Polls and Estates, Raise at least, so much, as the Charge of the foregoing Year did amount unto.

III. THAT Twenty Thousand Pounds in Province Bills of Credit be Borrowed, at Eight Pounds per Cent. per Annum, by the Province Treasurer: And that by a Law of the Province, sufficient Security be given to the Lenders, for the Payment both of the Principal so Lent, and of the Interest as aforesaid.

IV. THAT some speedy Care be taken to prevent the English Half-Pence passing for Two Pence a piece, as they now frequently do within this Province, which will certainly have a tendency to the further Disparagement of the said Bills of Credit.

W E ask Leave Humbly to offer the following Heads to the Consideration of this Honourable Court, altho' they do not so directly come into the Order for our Appointment as a Committee.

1. THAT the Acts made for Encouraging the Raising Hemp within this Province which will Expire in November 1725. be Revived, and further continued: And that in Addition thereto it may be Provided, That if one Man within this Province, shall Bona Fide, Raise and Bring to Market, Half a Tun of good Merchantable Water-Rotted Hemp, he shall receive for his Encouragement out of the Province Treasury the Addition of an Half Penny per Pound. And if any one Man shall raise a Tun of good Hemp, he shall receive the Addition of a Penny per Pound.

2. THAT whosoever shall within this Province, Make and bring to Market of the Produce of the Province, one or more Pieces of Good Sail Canvass, in Imitation of Hollands Duck, that shall contain Thirty-six Yards in Length, and full Twenty-seven Inches in Breadth, of a good even Thread, each Piece to weigh not less than Forty-four Pounds; shall Receive as a Bounty from the Province, Six Pence per Yard.

3. THAT if any Man shall Raise, within this Province, and bring to Market, Fifty Bushels of good Winter Wheat, he shall Receive as a Bounty for the same Twelve Pence per Bushel.

His Honour's S P E E C H is as follows, Viz.

G E N T L E M E N,

I Conclude you are here met with hearty Inclinations to exert your best Endeavours for His Majesty's Service and Honour, and the Good and Prosperity of your Country; to which you'll Apply your selves with all Convenient Dispatch.

It will be needless for me to recount the Progress of our Forces against the Enemy since the last Session of the General Court, those Events being well known: Wherefore I shall only observe to you that as we have lost some Brave Men, we have through the favour of G O D destroyed more of the Salvages; And I am hopeful that a Vigorous Prosecution of the War (perhaps for another Year) will with the Divine Blessing reduce the Enemy to a Submission upon such Reasonable and Equitable Terms as we shall Demand: And it will lie with you to make a suitable Provision for the Expence thereof.

And since the Method of Impressing Soldiers has been found many ways inconvenient and insufficient, I am of Opinion it will save Money to the Province, and much better answer their Hopes and Expectations if a Premium be Granted to such as will Voluntarily Inlist; by which means we may be Supplied with Good Men equal to the Service: And it's well known that the Enemy are Men able of Body and inured to the Fatigues and Arts of War.

I Recommend to your Compassion the Widow of Capt. Lovewell and those of his Men who dyed bravely in the late Action at Piggwackett, in the Service of their Country: And I make no doubt but you will distinguish by a suitable Reward such Officers and Soldiers as have distinguished themselves by an uncommon Bravery.

I have received from the Commissioners who went to Canada an Account of their Negotiation there, which shall be Communicated to you.

Gentlemen,

If you are inclined to save Time by making this session as short as may be, my Application shall not be wanting to give every thing that shall come before me the quickest Dispatch.

A Memorial and Address humbly Presented.

At a General Convention of MINISTERS from several Parts of the Province, at Boston, May 27th. 1725.

CONsidering the Great and Visible decay of Piety in the Country, and the Growth of many Miscarriages which we may fear have provoked the Glorious LORD in a Series of various Judgments wonderfully to distress us, Considering also the Laudable Example of our Predecessors to Recover and Establish the Faith and Order of the Gospel in the Churches, and provide against what Immoralities might threaten to impair them in the way of General Synods Convened for that Purpose, and Considering that about Forty Five Years have now rolled away since these Churches have seen any such Conventions, It is humbly desired that the Honoured General Court would Express their Concern for the great Interests of Religion in the Country by calling the several Churches in the Province to meet by their Pastors and Messengers in a SYNOD, and from thence offer their Advice upon that Weighty Case, which the Circumstances of the Day do loudly call to be Considered, — What are the Miscarriages whereof we have reason to think the Judgments of Heaven upon us call us to be more generally Sensible, and what may be the most Evangelical and Effectual Expedients to put a Stop unto those or the like Miscarriages? This Proposal we humbly make in hopes that if it be Prosecuted it may be followed with many desirable Consequences worthy the Study of those whom GOD has made, and we are so happy to Enjoy, as the Nursing Fathers of Our Churches.

Martis Die 16. Novembris, A. D. 1725.

MR. Speaker from the Committee appointed the Ninth to take under Consideration the Order for Payment of sundry Muster-Rolls of Voluntiers, during the last Recess of this Court, made Report according to Order: Which Report being Read twice; and the House having duely considered the same, Voted, That the said Report be accepted; and that a Remonstrance be made to the Honourable Board accordingly.

Whereupon the following Vote pass'd, viz.

THE House of Representatives taking into Consideration the Warrants Pass'd by His Honour the Lieut. Governour and Council, for Payment of several Companys of Voluntiers during the Recess of this Court, find themselves obliged to make the following Observations & Remonstrances thereon to the Honourable Board:

I. THAT the Honourable Board have, in the Recess of the Court, passed upon Four Muster-Rolls, viz. Capt. Willard's, Capt. Blanchard's, Capt. White's and Capt. Wyman's, amounting in the whole to the Sum of Two Thousand two Hundred Eighty one Pounds, six Shillings & eight Pence; and thereof have Ordered Payment out of the Thirty nine Thousand Pounds appropriated by a Resolve of the General Court, for the Supply of the Treasury, passed the 11th Day of June last, for Payment of Accompts, Muster-Rolls, &c. pass'd on for Payment by the General Court; to which Resolve the House are of Opinion, the Ordering of the above-mentioned Payments are wholly disagreeable.

II. THE House cannot but take Notice, That the Officers and Soldiers born on Capt. Willard's Roll, are allowed the Wages designed for such as should March into the Enemy's Country; to which Extraordinary Pay, the House are of Opinion, they are no ways Entitled, not having Marched at a distance from the Frontiers, but kept within the Range of the common and ordinary Scout.

III. THE House observe, That Five Men, viz. Joshua Parker, Thomas Burt, Robert Gary, Jacob Moor, and Jeremiah Belcher, entred for the whole Time in Capt. Willard's Roll; and that each Man received Nine Pounds four Shillings, altho' they were in the Service but one Week, and did not March Twenty Miles out, which might have been observed from Capt. Willard's Journal. The House further observe, That Brentnal and How were allowed in the same Roll Nine Pounds four Shillings each, altho' they were out but Nine Days, and did not Travel much more than Twenty Miles out; as also that Two Men have received Serjents Pay more than ought to have been allowed for the Number of Men in Capt. Willard's Company, which is too great a Misapplication of the Publick Money to pass without being remarked.

IV. THE House observe, That in the Muster-Roll of Capt. Wyman allowed and ordered to be paid in the Recess of the Court, two Men allowed Serjent's Pay beyond the Establishment; and also two other Men, viz. Whitney and Nurse, who did not proceed on the March, yet have received Nine Pounds each; and likewise Eight Men more who did no Duty or Service, and are on the Roll entred, taken Sick, which does evidence that they did not March at a distance from the Frontiers, and so could not be entitled to any Pay, much less to the Extraordinary Pay of Voluntiers; yet they have received Nine Pounds each out of the Publick Treasury.

V. UPON examining Capt. Blanchard's Roll, the House observe Two Men, viz. Josiah Blanchard and Stephen Wheeler carried out for the whole Time, and have received Nine Pounds four Shillings each, altho' those Men were not on the March, nor in the Service more than Fourteen Days at most.

VI. THE House do further observe and remark on the Four Muster-Rolls aforesaid, That all the Men are entred Fifteen Days before they Marched, and the Officers [19] a greater Number of Days; whereby the Fourth part of the said Sum of Two Thousand two Hundred eighty one Pounds six Shillings & eight Pence at the least, has been Paid to Persons, without any Order or Resolve of the General Court Intitling them thereto.

ALL which proceedings of the Honourable Board, the House apprehend to be not only contrary to the Resolves and Acts of the General Court, but also by no means to be passed over in Silence by the House, who are the Representative Body of the People.

Therefore,

Resolved, That the afore-mentioned Articles be Remonstrated to the Honourable Board as GRIEVOUS; that so such Misapplications of the Publick Money may be prevented for the future.

Mr. Speaker being necessarily detained in the Publick Service of the Province;

Voted, That John Stoddard, Esq; be the Speaker of this House, during the Absence of Mr. Speaker Dudley; and he was accordingly conducted to the Chair.

Whereas the General Court at their several Sessions, Annis 1720. 1722, 1723. and 1724. did for the discharge of the Debts of the Province, Order Emissions of divers considerable Sums in Publick Bills of Credit, and by their Resolves did Order that the Duties of Impost, Excise, &c. should be Funds for Repayment and Drawing in said Bills, and for a further Security for Repayment of part of the said Sums, There were granted unto His Most Excellent Majesty, by said Resolves several Taxes on Polls and Estates, to be proportioned on the several Towns within this Province, at the Session of this Court in May 1725. Amounting in the whole to l. 29666 13 s. 4 d. Accordingly this Court at their Session in May last, computing that the Sum of l. 9666 13 s. 4 d. part of the Sum of l. 29666 13 s. 4 d. would be brought in by the Duties of Impost, &c and that the Sum of l. 20,000, would remain to be drawn in by a Tax on Polls and Estates; Thereupon they proceeded to make a Law for the Raising and Collecting the Said Sum of l. 20,000, only, and to proportion said Sum to the Several Towns within this Province, according to the known Ability of each Town.

AND Inasmuch as divers Towns greatly distressed either by Uncommon Sickness, or the Calamities of War, were thought incapable to pay what was formerly accounted their proportion, such Towns were Abated either in whole or in part; which Sums so Abated were Raised on many other Towns, as is usually practised in such like Cases; and part thereof was added to the Town of Dartmouth, to make their Tax proportionable to their Neighbours, that being a prosperous and flourishing Town, without any Intention that any part thereof should be applyed to the Support of a Minister amongst them, as their Select-men do in their Petition unreasonably Suggest; and although the Court are ready to do them Justice and would Cheerfully Abate them, if they now had, or should hereafter make a Satisfactory proof, that they have been over Rated; Yet inasmuch as they have not so much as rendred the Matter probable, but only Suggested it.

Voted, That the Petition be dismissed.

Whereas the Extending of the Settlements far into the Eastern Country, tends to create Jealousies and Uneasiness amongst the Indians Inhabiting those parts, and may endanger this and the Neighbouring Governments being again Involved in War, and Extending the Frontiers Eastward and Westward, together with the Peoples Settling in an Irregular and Indefensible Manner, will necessarily put this Province to an insupportable Charge, and render us wholly incapable to protect them in case of a Rupture with the French or Indians; which Mischiefs may well be prevented by a Gradual, Compact and Regular Settling those Lands:

Therefore Resolved, That no Person or Persons whomsoever, Presume to bring forward any Settlement to the Eastward of Falmouth in Casco Bay, nor without the Towns in the Westward Frontiers of this Province, untill the General Court be fully Satisfied, in such Clams and Titles to Lands proposed to be Setled, nor untill such Person or Persons have obtained the Leave and Approbation of the Great and General Court for their Settling, and in case any Person or Persons shall presume to Settle without Leave obtained as aforesaid, or in an Irregular and Undefensible Manner, They shall not Enjoy the Protection of the Government; and His Honour the Lieutenant Governour is desired to Issue out a Proclamation, to Notifie all Persons of this Prohibition accordingly. The Board taking this Matter into further Consideration, a difficulty arose lest they should not aright conceive or apprehend what or how much the House intended by a sufficient and honourable Support and Maintenance for the said President; Do therefore desire the Honourable House to Express, Whether by the Incomes and Revenues of the College, They take in the Rents of Massachusetts-Hall for Five Years past, the Hundred and Fifty Pounds already advanced and paid Mr. President, together with the Rents of Massachusetts-Hall, for a Year in their Computation, for a sufficient and honourable Maintenance.

J. Willard, Secr.

William Tailer and Penn Townsend Esqrs; brought down the following Message from the Board, viz.

In Council, December 23. 1725.

T H E Board taking into Consideration a Vote of the Honourable House of the 16th of November last, (but lately published) Relating to the Payment of Four Muster-Rolls of the Marching Companies of Voluntiers, in the Recess of the Court; and being sensibly affected to find their Conduct in that Affair so Misrepresented to the World, judge themselves under a Necessity to set that Matter in a true Light, and thereby to free themselves from the Imputation laid upon them.

A N D in Order thereto, The Council allow that the said Rolls were paid in the Recess of the Court, notwithstanding the Proviso in the Resolve for the Supply of the Treasury, That Muster-Rolls should be first pass'd upon by the General Court.

B U T the Case being so, That those Companies having perform'd their March, and Knowing that Capt. Lovewell's Company in the like Case had been Twice paid their Wages on their Return, (and to which no Objection was made) came back with Expectation of being paid, as others had been before them; To have then Refused them Payment, and to have put them off till the General Court should meet, would have been effectually to Discourage, not only those Companies from further Service: (They declaring they could not fit out and proceed upon a Second March, which was designed for them, without their Pay;) But would have been also a Means to prevent others from Enlisting for the Future; Wherefore it being absolutely necessary for His Majesty's Service, and for the Defence & Safety of this Province, that they should have prompt Payment; the Board is thereby sufficiently Vindicated for Consenting to it.

A S to the Objection of the Officers and Soldiers on Capt. Willard's Roll, not being Entitled to the extraordinary Pay design'd for such as should March into the Enemies Country, It being said, That they did not March at a Distance from the Frontiers, but kept within the Range of the Common and Ordinary Scouts: — It may be justly answered, That the said Company was not only raised upon the Encouragement for Voluntiers, but did actually March out beyond the Range of the Common Scouts, and into the Indians usual Hunting Ground, and where they were likely to be Met withal. And as to the several Sick Men mentioned to have received above Nine Pounds each, and to have been in the Service but One Week, Capt. Willard himself informs, That [94] besides the Time allowed for Fitting out the said Men, having March'd with him about a Week, and falling Sick, they were sent back; but at their Return, were Order'd by His Honour the Lieut. Governour upon a Scout without Rutland, (which saved the Impressing of so many Men; And that they continued in that Service till his Return, tho' they were hindred by Sickness from Proceeding with him; so that they were not paid the abovesaid Sum for a Weeks Service, as is Suggested.

A S to a further Objection, That several Men received Nine Pounds each, who did no Duty or Service; The Board give for Answer, That Capt. Willard and Capt. Wyman made Oath, That the Men born on their respective Rolls were in actual Service the Time for which they stood Enter'd, Allowing Fifteen Days for Fitting out, Except some few Sick Men that return'd. Capt. White made Oath to the same Effect, Excepting One Sick Man; and Capt. Blanchard, without any Exception of Sick Men: Now if it be Considered, That those few Sick Men required the same Time to fit themselves out, as others did, That they March'd as far as they could till disabled by Sickness, and obstructed by frequent and extraordinary Rains, That some further Time was spent in their Return: It can't be justly said that they did no Duty or Service, and were not Entitled to any Pay.

A S to the last Objection, That the Men were Enter'd in Pay Fifteen Days before they March'd; It is Answered, That the Captains inform'd the Board, That the Soldiers being apprized of a Vote of the Honourable House in June last, for Allowing to Voluntiers a convenient Time for Fitting out, not exceeding Fifteen Days, They took it for Granted that such a Space was allowed them; And therefore Insisted upon it as a Condition of their Enlisting; And that the Captains had given them Encouragement it should be so; Whereby the Board was induced to allow of it. And as to the farther Time the Captains were Enter'd, They assured the Board, That besides a considerable Expence of Money, They were employed the Whole of it in Raising their Companies; So that the said Allowance being founded upon a Vote of the House as aforesaid, there was no just Cause to complain of it; Or that the Board should be charged with so great Misapplication of the Publick Money.

U P O N the Whole, When it shall be considered, How different the Case is from the Representation made of it, and How great and indefatigable Pains, the Board had taken for the Publick Service in the Recess of the Court, They might have rather Expected the Thanks of the House than their Reproaches;

And the Board apprehend, That the Publication of the Remonstrance herein refer'd to, has a direct Tendency to bring the Council into Disrepute, and to produce an uncomfortable Alienation and Distance between the Board and the Honourable House, Which the Board judge ought by all Means to be Avoided.

Acknowledged that he wrote it: And being several times asked; Whether he put or wrote the Name Saccaristis to the said Petition, or Whether Saccaristis did it himself? To which the said Checkley declined giving any direct Answer, Upon which he was ordered to withdraw, and in a short time a Messenger was sent to call him in but could not find him, and then a Notification was left at his Dwelling House to Order his Attendance this Day at Four a Clock Afternoon, which yet he neglects and refuses to do: And it appearing by a Certificate of Capt. John Larrabee, the Commanding Officer at Castle William, (where the said Saccaristis is an Hostage) that in the presence of the Chaplain, and an Officer of the said Garrison, he Examined the said Saccaristis touching the said Petition, who affirmed that he knew nothing of the said Petition, and particularly that the said Checkley never said one Word to him the said Saccaristis about Religion: so that the whole appears to be a Contrivance of the said Checkley, and a designed Imposition upon this Court, therefore Ordered, That this Petition be Dismiss'd.

Sent down for Concurrence.
